Knowing your enemy is key!

Being able to read people and spot character traits, flaws and also strengths is a skill that all special agents possess, particularly where the criminal element is concerned.

Complete your creation and description of the perfect criminal – this will help develop your skills and show the selecting committee how important you consider this special agent attribute.

Be prepared!

Practical, logical, inventive and at all times ready for action.

These skills are essential for special agents of all ages. Can you demonstrate you possess them? An ability to work with other agents of all personalities is also vital. The kit task seeks to put all these to the test.

Good Luck!

Originality, innovation and an eye for detail... Do you have what it takes?

Designing secret weapons and gadgets is NOT toy making, and not an easy challenge.

I will be intrigued to analyse your designs and look forward to clarity as you explain how they will work in the field.

Best of luck!

Communication is key!

Liaising with fellow agents, negotiating with the enemy, successfully going 'under cover'.

These are all requirements of the job.

Do you have the power of persuasion? Test your skills in this area to complete your test. You will be evaluated on both your acting skills and also how well you communicate.

Lights, camera, action...

Fitness First!

Becoming a special agent is a physically demanding role. We are not all world-class sports men and women, but the need to be fit and healthy is so important in the life of an agent.

Do you have that potential? Show us your commitment to fitness, and design the perfect training course. We await your plans with anticipation.

Knowledge is power!

A special agent's role is not all glamour and action. Preparation of all kinds is necessary to become a successful agent.

Do you have the skills to compile the perfect report? Research, organisation, communication – these are all to be tested in your next task. You may even find out a little more about your potential employer!

Can you keep a secret?

The world of an agent is a clandestine one, full of secrets and hidden messages.

Is there a future Morse amongst you?
Someone who could crack the Enigma? Your final task will test your logic, powers of observation and attention to detail.
A tricky test.
