

International Women's Day Book List

To celebrate International Women's Day, we have created a book list of our Behind the Cover titles.

This reading list celebrates four brilliant titles, written by women with women at their hearts. Not sure which one to start with? Here's what some of our readers had to say about each title:

Girl, Woman, Other
Author: Bernardine Evaristo
Publisher: Penguin Books

"'Girl, woman, other' made me think about the different lives of the women around me and how we all have our own story to tell. The book became a good friend to me in the first national lockdown."

Burnt Sugar
Author: Avni Doshi
Publisher: Penguin Books

"Burnt Sugar is a love story between a mother and daughter. It kept me gripped until the very last sentence. It's a five star read from me."

Becoming
Author: Michelle Obama
Publisher: Penguin Books

"Listening to Michelle Obama's Becoming really opened my eyes to the different issues affecting women in society. I would recommend this book to even the most reluctant reader."

Ordinary People
Author: Diana Evans
Publisher: Vintage publishing

"Ordinary people was my standout Behind the Cover Club title. It's so good - realistic and funny. It gets you thinking about parenthood, grief and friendship. I would love this book to be reimaged for the screen."
